They've lived in Arizona for three years but tell me that they have been passing by all these really cool landmarks without knowing they were even there. Now they are finding out interesting facts about their own area and areas in the vicinity that they are planning on visiting (now that the book has given them even more purpose to venture there). I highly recommend it for the seasoned and the new.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. giftBy loy m weathersthis was a Christmas gift for a male friend living in Arizona and he was really pleased to receive it4 of 18 people found the following review helpful. Arizona -- or Arkansas?By A CustomerAm I the only one to notice that "Arizona Curiosities" really has the state of Arkansas on its cover? Are they joking? I mean, the states both begin in "A," but that's absolutely where the similarities end. Maybe this is a prime example of grade schools which allow students who have not learned the academic basics to move to the next level and the next, on through the system. And that's why some students can somehow get a high school or even a college diploma while still believing that Brazil is located in Europe.

Arizona is the only state in the union that has adopted an official state neckwear and a state reptile, and the only place in the world to prosecute a man for murder by gila monster. It's home to the world's largest sundial, world's smallest museum, world's only teacup-as-art project, and dinosaur sentries who stand guard along an interstate. Learn even more as you laugh your way through the pages of Arizona Curiosities.

From the Back CoverArizona Curiosities is your round-trip ticket to the wildest, wackiest, most outrageous people, places, and things the Grand Canyon State has to offer. Popular humor columnist Sam Lowe has combed Arizona for one-of-a-kind gems that make his home state truly unique.You'll meet John Shaw, a minor-league thief who posthumously drank a shot of whiskey; you'll see Arizona's special brand of roadside wildlife; you'll experience competitive Arizona sports such as worm racing, cotton-bale rolling, outhouse penny-pitching, and ostrich riding.Whether you were born and raised in Arizona or are a recent transplant, Lowe's home-grown humor will have you laughing out loud as he introduces you to the neighbors you never knew you had and takes you to places you never knew existed - right in your own backyard.
