Charles T. Stewart Jr. : Around the World in Eighty Years: A Collection of Poems before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Around the World in Eighty Years: A Collection of Poems:

Stewart's poetry reveals fascination with nature as personal experience, and with history and culture as collective memory. They are combined with vivid impressions of places and peoples far away and near at hand. His reflections on nature and mankind stress the object of interest, sparing the reader subjective involution. Many poems reflect extended travels to some of the farther corners of the earth; others, a personal commentary on familiar places. The earliest poems, written in hospitals and troopships, are one man's memories of military life in the Second World War.

"There are wide horizons and long history in the poems of Charles T. Stewart." -- - Patricia Doherty Hinnebush, Editor, Orphic Lute"These poems are obviously the effort of a very knowledgeable and well traveled mind..." -- - Michael Fallon, Founding Editor of The Maryland Poetry, Teacher of Creative Writing at UMBC, and Author of A History of the Color Black"These poems form a deliciously rich and sensuous travelogue of words and images that capture the scents, tastes, and feelings..." -- - Brooke Peirce, Emeritus Professor of English, Goucher College

About the Author
Though born in New York, Charles T. Stewart spent his first eleven years in Brazil. After Boys High School and some college in Atlanta, he served in New Guinea and the Philippines, where he was wounded and decorated. On returning, he received BA and PhD degrees in Economics at George Washington University, taught at Utah State, did research for government agencies, then joined the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, becoming Director of Economic Research before returning to George Washington University as Professor of Economics, Emeritus since 1992. Married to Nancy Thayer, he has three children, Eileen, David, and Jocelyn, and two grandchildren. He has published extensively in the social sciences; his most recent book is Inequality and Equity. This is his first book of poetry, an avocation for half a century.
