A pleasant down tale of a regular couples journeyBy Mark ReesI enjoyed the book. It was a tale of a world cruise without any pretensions, just a couple of people enjoying three months visiting the rest of the world.0 of 0

The author is terrified of flying so for a silver wedding anniversary treat took his wife on a one- off cruise of a lifetime in the year 2000. That 17-day cruise across the Mediterranean changed their holidays for ever, and like thousands of others George and Deb became addicted to cruising and especially the ships of the PO fleet. The author's first book ('A Cornishman goes Cruising') tells the story of that first cruise. After many years of happy cruise holidays, retirement beckoned and the couple needed another special treat. So on a cold January evening in 2012 they left Southampton on the cruise ship MV Aurora on an adventure that would change their outlook on life with a circumnavigation of the world lasting over three months. Travel with them and share their thrills, laughter, and yes a few tears, as they discover so many amazing countries, cultures, and experiences on their journey around the world.
