Beth Adams-Smith : Atlantic Cruising Club's Guide to New England Canadian Maritime Marinas - Halifax, NS to Wickford, RI (Book with DVD) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Atlantic Cruising Club's Guide to New England Canadian Maritime Marinas - Halifax, NS to Wickford, RI (Book with DVD):

Boater-Biased, full page Consumer Reports on 300 Transient Friendly Marinas from Halifax, NS to Wickford, RI. Bound-in DVD is searchable on 100 fields or through map drill downs and includes 6,000 images that tell the real story. Rated on cruiser amenities, megayacht facilities, boatyard services and special or unique environment. Over 300 items of information, including rates plus a three paragraph review. What's Onsite, What's Nearby, What'll it cost. Boat supplies, restaurants (including entree price ranges), lodgings, recreation, entertainment (including fees), provisioning resources, general services, transportation, medical services. Everything a boater needs to know to make the right marina choice.

This extremely comprehensive guide takes all the guesswork out of choosing a marina. You'll know exactly what type of services and facilities they have and get an objective rating for them, including scenic beauty. It includes a DVD-ROM containing the same info plus a gazillion pictures and a versatile search function. Indispensable! --Latitudes Attitudes.... its extensive Guides to Marinas, which will certainly become the bible for ... cruisers. Devoid of [marina] advertising and thus any possibility of the guide's judgment being tainted by financial interests, the ... book includes a searchable DVD (for Windows only). Each marina is given a full page, with ratings on everything from the number of travelifts to local scenery and a section that has information and phone numbers on any services or facilities a cruising yacht and her crew might need. Every marina in the book has a photograph, with many more on the CD. Nearly as indispensable as the boat itself, the entire series of ACC cruising guides is exemplary for completeness and objectivity. --Blue Water Sailing Best New Books: This hefty edition of Atlantic Cruising Club's Guides to Marinas should make heading ashore much less of a crapshoot. In addition to critical evaluations, each marina's write-up includes information such as its number of slips, power options, rates, geographic coordinates, pet policy and handicap access in short, everything anyone could possibly want to know. In an effort to ensure the objectivity of their ratings, reviewers paid for their own services and did not disclose the nature of their visits until after they made their assessments. (Not every marina earns terrific marks, either.) The book comes with a DVD-ROM containing the same information (plus 6000 photos) and a versatile search function. --Yachting Magazine About the Author Beth and her husband Richard have been cruising the US East Coast for several decades; other cruising adventures have taken them to Bermuda, the Bahamas, the Caribbean's Leeward and Windward Islands, Tahiti and the Society Islands, Pacific Northwest, Whitsunday Islands, Tonga, Baja, Belize and numerous cruising grounds throughout the Mediterranean including Corsica, Greece, Croatia, and Turkey. Along the way, they've visited more than 2,500 marinas on North America's east and west coasts as cruisers, authors and editors including the marinas in this Guide. The primary writer/editor of the Atlantic Cruising Club's Guides to Marinas, Beth is also a digital media producer and has spearheaded the design and co-managed the development of Jerawyn Publishing's proprietary Datastract™ database management and digital publishing software - including a library of over 30,000 nautical and travel images. Atlantic Cruising Club at Jerawyn Publishing has been completely digital since 1997. In addition to her work on the ACC Guides, Beth writes cruising articles, blogs as the Wandering Mariner focusing on holistic approaches to crew lifestyle and vessel management, cruising, destinations, waterborne and water-oriented travel, and also blogs on Travegans.com for travelers and boaters choosing a plant-based diet. She has also produced numerous documentaries, multiple media and database projects on holistic living, ecology, peacemaking, food, and complementary medicine, and holds a doctorate in Technology and Media and a masters in Health Education both from Columbia University, a bachelors in Broadcast Journalism from Boston University and is a Certified Health Education Specialist.
