A companion for travelers By A Customer A pair of professional photographers identified and photographed many of the key places where events mentioned in the Lewis and Clark journals took place. In the text, they recount the journey and use carefully-chosen quotations. This is an attractive book. It may not capture the whole of the journey, but, in part because it is pared down, it would serve as an excellent companion for the many families who will retrace at least parts of the journey in the next few years.

Join the Corps of Discovery as they navigate the lengths of the Missouri and Columbia Rivers in this unforgettable photo documentary. Along with their vibrant color photographs, Bill and Jan Moeller add carefully researched text and quotes from the journals of William Clark and Meriwether Lewis to create a fascinating look at the uncharted West. Feel the "secret pleasure" described by Lewis as you find yourself surrounded by the mountains and mighty waters of the West just as the explorers saw it.

"Bill and Jan Moeller's Lewis and Clark provides a photo documentary to accompany text and quotes from the journals of Lewis and Clark, creating a more appealing visual exploration of their journeys accessible to general-interest audiences." About the Author Husband and wife Bill and Jan Moeller were professional photographers, researchers, and writers. Since 1982 they traveled full time in their RV to visit and photograph battlefields and other historical sites, and to write books about the two primary influences currently affecting their lives: western history and recreational vehicles. In addition, they wrote a weekly syndicated newspaper column called "RV Traveling." Before embarking on land-based ventures, they lived aboard a sailboat for twelve years and circumnavigated the eastern United States--up the Hudson River to the Great Lakes, down the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico, and back to the eastern seaboard.
