WheelerMike is a great author... Have picked up some of his other writings over the past year and am a big fan. He really has the knack down of writing great stories. Looking forward to getting a chance to read this. Am in Peru and 's post is hopeless down here but when I am next in the UK or US will be picking up a copy. I did however see some of his videos from Destin Florida and they are quite some viewing. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful.

Of course, I also will show you around the resort itself. It's an amazing place and really deserves to be showcased, since many people visiting the Gulf are looking for the ideal place to stay. It was my base camp throughout my time there and I really fell in love with it. I hope you will, too.

About the Author In the spring of 2010, Mike Carraway was staying on the beach at Edgewater Beach Condominium in Destin, Florida. The headline news was all about the Gulf of Mexico BP oil spill. If the news reports were to be believed, though, the entire stretch of beaches on the Panhandle, all 227 miles of it, was blanketed by crude oil and tar balls. Reporters readily held tar balls up to the camera to show the state of the beaches from New Orleans to Apalachicola. According to them, the region was awash in black tar, crude and oil soaked wildlife. There was only one problem. I was sitting on the beach there. There was no oil. There were no tar balls. My family and I were having the time of our lives on the Panhandle and not only loved the oil-less beach, but the resort itself. I spent almost every weekend on the beach in Destin for the entire summer of 2010 creating videos and uploading them to the internet so that others could see that the beaches in Destin, Florida were all clear. In the process of doing my on scene reporting, I ended up spending a lot of time in the Destin area. As a result, I was able to take off my tourist hat and get a local's eye view of the area and all it had to offer. And that's what this book is all about. I hope you can use and enjoy it and hope you have as much fun as I did during my extended stay at Edgewater Beach Condominium and the Emerald Coast of NW Florida.
