Kentucky's Mammoth Cave National Park is home to the world's longest cave system, boasting over 350 miles of explored and mapped passageways. Geologists estimate that there could be as many as 600 miles of this vast subterranean world that remain unexplored. In addition to the renowned Mammoth Cave, the park also includes over 50,000 acres of untouched hills, streams, and forests. Almost 70 miles of scenic trails cross the area, and the Green River winds through the landscape. Nearly two million visitors from all over the world come to the park each year to explore and enjoy nature. In 2003, nature photographer Raymond Klass was awarded an artist-in-residence position at the park and was granted special access to the cave and the surrounding wilderness. For nearly three months he lived in the park, taking thousands of photographs of famous cave formations such as Frozen Niagara and the Drapery Room as well as scenery and wildlife not often accessible to the general public. Mammoth Cave National Park: Reflections is Klass's unique visual exploration of both the above- and belowground ecosystems within the park. With over 100 dramatic full-color photographs accompanied by Klass's commentary and extracts from his journal entries made while living and working in the park, the book is a celebration of this distinctive environment and of the extraordinary diversity of one of our most popular national parks.

"More than a hundred photographs. . . . Covers everything from ancient lava flows to tree-covered hills to acorns, squirrels, and snails, along with excerpts from his journal." American Heritage "This coffee-table book filled with pictures of Kentucky's most famous attraction is beautiful and is as much a personal reflection on time spent in the forest as it is a reflection of what Klass captured in his camera." Bowling Green Daily News "Captures the breathtaking drama and extraordinary beauty of one of our most popular national parks." Chevy Chaser/Southsider "The detail in the photographs lets the reader absorb the wonder of Mammoth Cave perhaps more than a dimple day trip to the park could ever provide." Kentucky Living "A sumptuous collection of photographs of our native wonder. . . . Klass captures the wonderment and majesty of the cave system, to be sure, but he wisely does justice to the amazing sights above-ground, too." Louisville Courier-Journal "For those who have journeyed above- and belowground at Mammoth Cave, this book will serve as a visual reminder of nature's splendor. For those who have yet to visit this national treasure, let this collection of images delight your imagination with what awaits you." Ronald R. Switzer, from the foreword "Klass . . . captures the unique beauty of Mammoth Cave and its surroundings." Register of the Kentucky Historical Society About the Author Raymond Klass, a freelance photographer, was awarded a North American Nature Photography Association scholarship in 2000. He lives in New City, New York.
